The Nurturing Network's Board of Director's is happy to announce an exciting new opportunity for TNN. The Board has unanimously approved a well-earned sabbatical year for TNN's Founder and President, Mary Cunningham Agee.

After nearly 30 years of managing TNN's daily operations and personally counseling thousands of women in crisis, Mary has accepted this recommendation to place a priority on the educational component of TNN's mission during the next twelve months. Specifically, her focus will be the writing of a book that will capture the very essence of what has made TNN such a healing force in our culture. TNN's Board of Directors looks forward to the publication of this best-selling author's book noting that she is uniquely qualified to communicate a message of compassion and hope.

The effectiveness of TNN's extensive networking capability will make possible the leveraging of its Founder's time and expertise. TNN will continue to serve college and working women in all fifty states and over 30 foreign countries. Increased emphasis will be placed on collaboration with hundreds of local pregnancy care centers with whom TNN has developed close working relationships over the years.

Mary thanked the Board of Directors for their confidence in her noting that, "After nearly three decades of managing TNN's day-to-day operation, a time of reflection is needed to fully integrate all that TNN has meant to me." In a message to TNN's clients and faithful supporters, TNN's President and Founder expressed the hope that her writing will serve as a testimony to the courage and generosity of the clients and members of TNN.
